The Sacramento-based California New Car Dealers Association said that it has awarded 63 California students enrolled in post-secondary automotive technology or automotive management programs scholarships totaling $53,300 for the 2010-11 school year.

Scholarships are awarded through the CNCDA's scholarship foundation.

Since awarding its first scholarships in 1995, the foundation has granted 260 totaling $371,000.

CNCDA represents more than 1,300 franchised new-vehicle dealers statewide.
